

Breakdowns Bring U. S. Rail System Face to Face With Appalling Situation

ROLLING STOCK IS NEGLECTED BY RAILROADS, M'CHORD SAYS

The national railroad today is facing an appalling situation as a result of shortage of locomotives and the breaking down of hundreds of others, due to the neglect of equipment by the railroads.

Government investigators have found that engines, overworked for months, are now showing the effect of railroad officials' refusal to improve or care for their rolling stock, dating from the first intimation that the Government was about to take over the railroads.

Charges Admitted. While Administration officials find that some railroad men refused to admit "moldering" during the period preceding Government control, other railroad officials admit that the charges have basis and truth.

Shop forces are depleted by enlistment and by inroads from other industries.

Administration officials today reported to "speed-up" measures in locomotive repair shops to relieve the situation.

Increased hours of labor will be resorted to, following direct appeal to A. C. Wharton, representing the shop mechanics. Overtime will be the rule until every locomotive is back on the tracks with a maximum load. In return the Government will grant wage increases asked by the mechanics, averaging, it is believed, about 40 per cent.

Reports Published. Summarized reports of special investigators for the Interstate Commerce Commission were made public by Commissioner McChord.

Trains have been made up and allowed to wait on tracks for hours, clogging up freight yards and stopping traffic because of shortages of engines. Locomotives have been held up for ten hours in roundhouses when they should have been turned out in 4 or 5 hours. Crews have been held at terminals sixteen hours and then relieved by other crews while waiting for engines. Trains on sidings have been held up until the sixteen-hour law forced roads to send out relief crews.

Based on Charges. These conditions, set forth by Commissioner McChord's report, were the basis of the sensational charges that railroad executive and intentionally negligent to embarrass the railroad administration, made by W. G. Lea, of the Railway Trainmen.

Conditions of locomotives are especially bad on the Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Philadelphia & Reading, New York, New Haven and Hartford, the Erie and the Jersey Central. In the Pittsburg yards of the Pennsylvania line McChord reported 100 locomotives were turned on February 6 at an average time of nearly seven hours, while on the corresponding day last year 149 locomotives were returned in average time of four hours.

Inspectors at the Osceola Mills engine house of the Pennsylvania complained in one report that foremen were failing to make work reports and engines were not being inspected at the pits. No explanation for failure to make repairs was made.

At the Edge Moor yards on February 1, the report states, forty-one engine crews were on hand, but there were no available locomotives.

THIRTY MORE ARMY TRUCKS REACH BALTO. BALTIMORE, Feb. 11.—The sixth train of army trucks to make the trip from Detroit to the Government shops at Calumet arrived yesterday afternoon. It consisted of thirty trucks, which carried a consignment of machinery parts. It is known as Truck Train No. 2. The train will start on its return at noon today.

About two weeks were taken for the trip. The schedule is eight days, but the severe weather and the conditions of the roads caused delays.
